

The second part, to the same Tune.

That daring bold fellow, y<sup>e</sup> Son of Vantrump, Whose brains were beat out by the head of the Engageing wth brave Capt Holmer, hand to hand,
His Ship sunk to th<sup>e</sup> bottom, yet he got to Land,
His Fate looked grim.

It was well he could swim,
Else he that caught Fisher, y<sup>e</sup> Fish had caught him,
They eat up our Fish without Reason or Lawes,
But now they are going to pay for the Sauce.

To mock at mens misery is not my aime,
It never can add to an Englishmans fame;
But I may rejoyce that the Battel is wonn,
Because in the victory Gods will is done,

Whose Justice appears
In such great Affairs,
Who will for Amboina plague them & their Heirs
For he that doth combat his conscience with guilt
In shedding of blood, his own shall be spilt.

In this cruel Contest (our fortune was such)
We take seventeen Pen of War from the Dutch,
And likewise (as then the occasion requir'd
& as God would have it) fourteen more were fir'd.

At Amboina when
They Tortur'd our Men,
they look'd not to have the same paid them agen
With fire & with water their sinews they crackt
In fire and in water they dy'd for the fact.

According as our God of Battel commanded
The best of their Vessels were fir'd & stranded,
All Ships, Pen of War; for what power hath man
To fight with that Army, where God leads y<sup>e</sup> Van

They Stare, and the Stem,
But 'twas so extream,
our men were near dying, with killing of them;
They lost (when y<sup>e</sup> muskets & cannon so thunder'd
Twice so many thousand as we have lost hundr'd

I would make a brave Englishmans heart leap to
But forty Ships made an escape of their Fleet (scit
Wh<sup>ch</sup> our men persue wth much courage & strenght
'Tis doubtless but we shall surprize them at
If God be our guide, (length,
And stand by our side,
we shall be befriended with fair Wind & Tide;
If Providence prosper us with a good Gale,
The Dutch nor the Devil shall ever prevaile.

Prince Rupert like lightning flew thorough their
Like flame mixt wth powder, their Army did (flatt
Ten thousand slain bodies the Ocean ore (met
That in few hours distance were living spread,
Their Admirals all, (& dead,
Save one there did fall,

and death had command like a chief General,
Brabe Smith in the Mary did save out his way
As Reapers do Wheat, or as Powers cut Hay.

(parts;
Stout Lawson, and Minn, there did both play their who emptied their Guns in their Enemies hearts
The burly fat Dutchmen being cut out in Ships,
The Vessels did looke more like Shambles then
God prosper the Fleet, (Ships:
And send they may meet

Du Ruiter, to make up the Conquest compleat,
God blefs all the Princes, and every thing
That Fights for y<sup>e</sup> Kingdom, & prays for y<sup>e</sup> King.
F I N I S

A List of the Names of the Dutch Ships which were taken, fired and sunk, by his Majesties Fleet, under his Highness the Duke of Yorke, June the 3.

Ships taken.
The Helderston, taken by the Bristol, Guns 60.
The Mars, taken by the Assurance, Guns 50.
The Clove-tree taken by the Colchester, Guns 62.
Charles the 5th. taken by the Plymouth, Guns 45.
The Delft, taken by the Breda & Leopard, Guns 40.
The Young Prince, taken by the Martin, Guns 36.
The Zeland, taken by the Centurion, Guns 36.
The Black Bull, by the Anne & Ruby, Guns 56.
The Ruiter, taken by the Dolphin, Guns 18.
Divers more taken since, whose names we have not yet. A thousand Manacles found aboard one of their Ships, which they had provided to Hand-cuff
the English. O! Rogues in grain.

Ships burnt and sunk.
Opdams Ship blown up, Guns 84.
The Mirceven, Guns 78.
The Sieden, burnt, Guns 40.
The Tergoes, burnt by the Dolphin, Guns 34.
The Orange tree, burnt, Guns 76.
Capt. Cuypers Ship sunk, Guns 30.
One sunk by the Advice, Guns 46.
One Fire-Ship, blown up the night before the Fight.
Another the night after.
Another great Fire-Ship sunk, going off.
Others sunk and run aground.
Not above 30. of our Ships that did Engage in the heat of the Battel, wherein we lost 1 Ship, 383 men.